ARMINIAN SKELETON.
Subscriptions are received at the Book Store of COTTON and STEWART, for a BOOK entitled,

THE SKELETONS:
Or, the Arminian Anatomized, and
The Carnal Preacher Dissected.

In two Parts.
Part I. The Arminian, or doctrine of Universal Charity pursued, taken, examined, tried, condemned, executed, and anatomized.

Part II. The Carnal Preacher Dissected, with comments on several dark passages of scripture. In a series of letters, written at various times to friends in the country.

Conditions, &c. are left at the above store.

It is the opinion of several respectable clergymen, that the above book contains the ground work and principles of genuine piety, as it manifestly proves, from the scriptures of truth, that the doctrine of free will and universal redemption is unfounded.

Latest Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, September 21.

By the Hamburg mail we have received a letter from Paris, dated the 5th instant, which states, that the purport of the orders sent by the king of Sweden to his Ambassador there is, that he shall leave that city in six days, and the Swedes residing there in his majesty's service, in the course of fourteen. M. Signeol, the agent-general for trade, will alone remain there to superintend the commercial affairs of Sweden.

Letters from Amsterdam state, that the Russian Legation is expected soon to leave that place. This is a matter of course.

September 22.

The brother to the king of France, sailed on Wednesday last, with a fair wind, for Gottenburg, under convoy of a gun brig. Previous to his departure he received a letter from his Most Christian Majesty, which is understood to contain an assurance that the Emperor of Russia and the King of Sweden are willing to acknowledge Louis XVIII. and his hereditary claims to the throne of France and Navarre, provided England will set them the example.

September 24.

The two important questions respecting the new title of Emperor of Austria, and the violation of the German Empire, have been taken into consideration by the Diet at Ratisbon, and have received such a decision as might be expected from the present degraded state of Europe.

Letters from Spain, with the last Lisbon mail, mention, that after the arrival of a courier from Admiral Gravina, the Ambassador of his Catholic Majesty in France, the Cabinet of Madrid ordered the equipment of some ships of the line and frigates; Bonaparte insisting that the blockade of one of its ports by a British squadron is an infraction upon the neutrality of Spain. It is believed that those Spanish ships now arming are destined to serve as convoy to the French and Dutch ships at Ferrol, or rather to augment their number; and in case they are attacked, such an act will be regarded as a declaration of war on the part of Spain. It was even said at Lisbon, that these proceedings, and this determination of the Court of Spain, had already been announced to the Court of St. James's.

A Gentleman, who left Paris, on the 11th, and Rotterdam on the 18th, announces, as a rumour in France and Holland, that the Emperor of Russia has intimated to the Court of Copenhagen, that, in the event of a rupture with France, his Imperial Majesty could not suffer any French agents to reside in the Danish dominions, or endure, upon the part of Denmark, a neutrality that must be injurious to Europe. A declaration nearly to the same effect is said to have been made to the Ottoman Porte, by the Russian Ambassador at Constantinople. Private letters state, that Count Rasmouski, the Russian Ambassador at Vienna, has been recalled, and is succeeded at that Court by only a Charge d'Affaires.

A gentleman, who on Friday arrived in town from the Continent, relates, that an alliance has been actually concluded between Austria, Prussia, and France, which comprises among other extraordinary matters, the concurrence of the former power to the proposed election of Frederick William to be King of the Romans, and to the House of Brandenburg being the future head of the Germanic Body. For this concession (to which, it is stated, the Emperor Francois was in some degree incited by the increased influence of Prussia among the Electors, with a conviction of its further increase through the ascendancy of France) his Imperial Majesty, in addition to the hereditary title of Emperor of Austria is to receive a large accession of territory, which Turkey is to be compelled to alienate. The confines of France and Prussia are also to be considerably augmented; but the particulars are not mentioned, nor perhaps as yet thoroughly defined.

GOTTENBURG, Sept. 14.

"A war between Sweden and France seems unavoidable, for in consequence of the severe observations, contained in the Moniteur of the 14th ult. upon the King of Sweden's Notes delivered at the Diet at Ratisbon, the latter has prohibited all French papers from being circulated in Sweden; and by the post from Stockholm of the 10th inst. we learn, that a courier from the King arrived there on Saturday last, the 8th inst. when a Council was immediately summoned, at which it was determined to prohibit all the French papers, and to forbid, upon pain of dismissal, all the civil and military officers from holding any communication with the French Charge d'Affaires, who in consequence left Stockholm on the 10th inst.

"The reason of the abovementioned proceedings seems to be sufficiently explained by a fact stated in private letters, received by the last Hamburg mail. These letters state, that Bonaparte's emissaries in Sweden are busily employed in distributing translations in the Swedish language of his late official libel in the Moniteur against the king of Sweden."

Orders were received on Friday at Plymouth for all the frigates to get ready for sea as soon as possible. Dispatches were received on Saturday from our fleet off Brest, which was left all well on Wednesday. The enemy remained at single anchor, but their van-division has been lately painted, and the ships have had all their yards, tops, and bends newly varnished. Several small parties of soldiers have deserted lately in open boats from Brest, and Camaret Point battery, to the frigates of our in shore squadron. They say, that the troops are discontented with their inactivity; but that the fleets in the outer road have troops on board, and have positive orders to endeavour to push out the first opportunity that offers.

A letter from an officer of one of our in-shore cruisers off Flushing, states, that on Tuesday last, at 11 A. M. turning up towards Elushing, they saw seventeen sail of schooners and luggers running down under Dutch colours; at 9 A. M. they anchored in Ostend Roads, from whence they were joined by ten other schooners and forty sail of acuyts with troops on board. Seven sail of schooners remained in Ostend Roads, the rest ran for Dunkirk. On Thursday, they all went into Dunkirk harbour, where they judged there might be about one hundred sail of the same sort of vessels, and three prams. The cutter boarded three neutral vessels which came out of Ostend; they informed him, that there had been an embargo there for two months but that it was taken off when the flotilla had sailed, and that only one frigate was left behind at Flushing to serve as a guard ship, &c. all the rest of the flotilla had sailed of every description. The troops are represented to be discontented with their state of inactivity; they had hoped before this to have shared the wealth of this "proud island of shop-keepers."

It is supposed, from the frequent observations which have been made by Lord Keith and Sir Home Popham, on the state of the enemy's fortifications on the opposite coast, that some attempt is to be made to destroy the flotillas collected in the harbours of Calais and Boulogne. The latter is so perfectly protected by the commanding heights which form the harbour, as to render any enterprize of the kind on the sea side absolutely impracticable. The same advantages secure it against bombardment.

Extract of a letter from the Mediterranean, brought by the Agincourt.—"There are 11 sail of the line off Toulon, with Lord Nelson; and the French have 8 sail of the line, in perfect readiness for sea; which occasionally come out, when our ships are at a distance off the shore. The infirm state of his lordship's health, it is confidently believed in the fleet, will cause him to return to England immediately, in the Medusa frigate, Captain Gerf. The Russians, it is suspected, intend to send a force into Naples. Genoa is so closely blockaded by the English, that no vessel can come out without being captured. We keep a ship of the line in Naples Bay to watch the movements of the French, who are not far distant from that neighborhood. The straits of Messina and that coast, are guarded by five frigates, under the command of captain Calcraft of the Anson, to prevent the French taking possession of Sicily."

According to letters which are stated to have been received from our blockading squadron off the Texel, the Batavia squadron in that port lately have indicated something of a disposition to put to sea. For nearly ten days all the officers were strictly commanded to sleep on board their respective ships, and expected to sail as soon as an opportunity presented itself. The Dutch ships were represented by the capt. of a Prussian ship, who was spoken by our cruisers, as being victualled for 6 months; and hence an idea was entertained that they were to proceed on some distant expedition. The number of ships ready for sea, the same capt. stated, to be six ships of the line, four frigates, and a few smaller vessels. The land troops on board were not more than 5000 men. These stories have however, been so often repeated, that little credit can be attached to them.

A Glasgow gentleman on his arrival at Frankfort 1st Sept. 1804, writes home to his correspondents: "On my journey through Hanover I met with several regiments marching towards the Elbe. As far as I could learn, it is supposed that their intention is to block up the passage of British goods from Hamburg and Lubbeck, into the interior of Germany, and some even go so far as to say, that they are to take possession of Mecklenburg, by which if they succeed, a final stop will be put to the expediting of goods from these quarters."

Sept. 26.

We become more and more convinced that the invasion will shortly be attempted. Our last advices from Brest left the fleet of 21 sail of the line in the outer harbour, with orders to sail the first favourable wind.

From the (Phila.) REGISTER.

At a time when a foreign minister prates about his master's ability to blockade our harbours, it may be both instructive and profitable to consult the records of history, to ascertain what has been done by other nations on similar occasions of depredation and menace.

With this view, and without intending to assimilate the pigmy power of modern Spain to the colossal strength of monarchial France, in the reign of Charles the eighth, or to compare the resources of the United States with the slender means of the Florentine republic, a lesson of firmness and magnanimity may be adduced from the conduct of that republic, which ought not to be overlooked by our government, when the territorial boundary of our country (still remaining as Mr. Jefferson says, to be settled,) and the just claims of our aggrieved citizens are the subject of controversy with a nation, which in a resort to arms, we could instantly compel to concede every disputed limit, and to restore every shilling of our violated property.

Guicciardini in the history of the wars in Italy, when Charles the eighth of France invited by the republic of Venice, Pope Alexander the 6th, and Lodovico Sforza to enter Italy, and invade the kingdom of Naples, had progressed in a victorious career to the city of Florence, thus describes his entrance into that city, and his subsequent negotiations with those citizens, who on the flight of Piero de Medici, had assumed the direction of the government.

"The king made his entry in great pomp at the head of his army, on horseback—the French and the Florentines vying with each other in magnificence. His majesty appeared like a conqueror, with his erected lance resting on his thigh. A treaty was entered upon immediately, but was attended with seemingly insuperable difficulties: For besides the immoderate regard professed by many of the king's followers to the name of Piero de Medici, and the exorbitant demands that were made for money, Charles peremptorily required the absolute dominion of Florence; alledging, that by coming into the town in the armed manner he did, he had gained it lawfully according to the rules of war practised by the French.

At last he receded from this point, and insisted only on leaving behind him certain ambassadors, with gowns, called in France Doctors and men of the robe. This according to the French custom, would have created him for ever a sort of jurisdiction. But the Florentines being determined at all hazards to preserve their liberty entire, warmly refused to submit to this demand.

Both parties argued with great vehemence, yet neither was in a condition to oppose the other, or terminate the disputes with the sword. As to the people they had applied themselves time out of mind, to mercantile affairs, knew little of military exercises, and were in great awe of so powerful a king within their walls; with an army composed of different nations, who might every instant fall upon them.

On the other hand the French were apprehensive of the great number of inhabitants, who had shewn more resolution and bravery the day Piero was attained than could have been imagined: besides it was rumoured, that at the toll of the great bell the whole country would rise and destroy them; and every now and then one or other of these whispers prevailing, each side would run to arms, but never came to blows; nor did one party insult the other.

The two parties in Florence were very much exasperated, and near coming to an open rupture: The king would not recede from any of his last demands, and the republic was resolved not to give the immense sums he required, nor part with the least of their privileged any sort of jurisdiction. These difficulties the without the use of composed by the resolution, one of the citizens. He was a man of great much esteemed in Florentine family, and de reats who had been us lic.

One day at a conference the other deputies, on ry's reading the immoderately insisted on, seriously snatching the p retary, tore it in pieces sense; adding with an your demands are so round your trumpets an bells, which he intended war, and with the same ed by his companions, c

This speech from the citizen, who was well known France (where he had been Ambassador) struck the Florentines: For they imagined have ventured to speak being certain that his condition to support wh ed.

These difficulties thought unsurmounta-composed by the resolution of Piero Capponi, one of the citizens appointed to treat — He was a man of great capacity, and very much esteemed in Florence, being of an ancient family, and descended from parents who had been useful to the Republic.

One day at a conference together with the other deputies, on the Royal Secretary's reading the immoderate articles peremptorily insisted on, Piero got up and furiously snatching the paper from the secretary, tore it in pieces in the king's presence; adding with an agitated voice, since your demands are so unjust, you may sound your trumpets and we will ring our bells, which he intended as a declaration of war, and with the same vehemence followed by his companions, quitted the room.

This speech from the mouth of such a citizen, who was well known to the court of France (where he had been lately sent ambassador) struck the French with astonishment: For they imagined he would not have ventured to speak so boldly, without being certain that his republic was in at condition to support what he had advanced.

The French intimidated by this resolute behaviour, civilly entreated the deputies to return when giving up the odious articles, the following terms were agreed on.

Although we do not pretend to match the Cock of Carter's mount in with the Cappon of Florence, yet daughill as this cock is, we must hope with such an example to animate his prowess, he will not suffer the Spanish Bantam to peck his barley, or to snarl him from the walk.

Extract of a letter dated St. Louis, August 18, 1804.

"The Committee of Upper Louisiana, have seen with pleasure the eagerness of the inhabitants of Lower Louisiana, to devote themselves for the maintenance of the rights which belong to us. Our committee is preparing some rules or local laws to be presented Mr. Harrison, governor of the territory, on the first of Octber next. The committee is determined not to suffer the laws of Mr. Harrison to be promulgated, unless they have been previously communicated to them to make the necessary alterations if they require it.

The committee expresses a wish for the re-union of the two Louisianas to obtain a representation to Congress. The division of Louisiana is contrary to the spirit of the treaty of cession, and they are determined to appeal to it as its meaning."

Among the involved sentences, and vapid verbiage of Mr. Jefferson's Message we have looked, but we have looked in vain, for a single word respecting our unfortunate fellow-citizens, who are pining in the prisons of Tripoli. While paragraphs are multiplied on the concerns of the Delaware and Piankeshaw Indians, while pages are devoted to speculations in lead mines and suppositions on whirling gun-boats, not a syllable is given to the sufferings of our gallant seamen, not a ray of comfort is extended to the afflicted relatives of these meritorious and much injured men: They may perish in captivity, and their families may languish in want, without exciting the sympathy of an administration, which neither appreciates their worth, nor commiserates their misfortune an administration in the execution of whose orders they incurred their captivity, and whose ingratitude and fallacious economy protract their bondage—an administration whose cures are confined to exhibit the political skeleton economy in a dress that may captivate the crowd, and deceive the superficial observer—for to the eye of the discerning and independent citizen, this skeleton offers nothing but dissatisfaction and disgust; the keen glance of the indignant patriot penetrates the veil, which conceals its deformity, and detects the imposture, he sees the wealth of the nation wasted on worthless partisans, & more money squandered in the single item of renewed out-fits to ambassadors, than would have liberated our imprisoned sailors, or have relieved their distressed families.

Is it not, however, the duty of the community to correct this apathy on the part of the executive; and, as a longer continuance of the neglect may excite an indignation among our sea-faring citizens, which might affect the most important interests of the nation, are we not enjoined by every consideration to take an inference in behalf of that class of men, who are no less essential to our safety, than they are necessary to our comfort? It is, indeed, no longer an affair of feeling, it is the dictate of a sound and urgent policy to demand from the government their immediate ransom.

It will not be alledged, after the pompous display which the message makes of the finances (and by the bye the abundance of our treasury is but a continued result of federal measures) that money is wanting to effect the liberation of our captive citizens.
But should an evasion of that nature be attempted, let it be remembered by every citizen of the United States, that Mr. Jefferson in pursuit of popularity, and to oblige his nabob friends and whiskey drinking acquaintance, repealed the taxes on coaches, loaf sugar, and distilled spirits, which yielded a revenue that would have ransomed our seamen, and have furnished ample means to protect our commerce.
To him, therefore, and to his time serving measures, may be fairly attributed those evils, which now afflict our unfortunate fellow citizens, and distress the trade of the country.

When we are told, as we are by Mr.
Jefferson's message, that the militia may be employed to man the gun boats, is there not cause to suspect that he anticipates resentment, and refusal of service from our undervalued and neglected seamen?

This burlesque of all military arrangements, this substitute of militia for mariners, may be gravely proposed by Mr.
Jefferson, and may be as gravely advocated by his satellites, but we must be allowed to laugh at its folly, and question the expediency of its adoption, and we may even venture to predict, that it will share the fate of the ridiculous suggestion on the subject of dry-docks.

How long will the American people suffer their best interests to be sacrificed to the selfish projects, and visionary conceits of a vain and wise philosopher! (Reg.

[The following elegant and just satire is from the Caravanary, a periodical paper of uncommon merit, which occasionally appears in Dr. Park's valuable "Repericry."

There is no art in which our public prints more excel, than in the art of puffing, and no part of the union, in which it was practised more success, than in New England, and in this our beloved town of Boston. As in these eastern states it is rare to meet with an unconditioned private, since our very publicans are field officers, so if we give credit to our weekly journals, four minds too are of a gigantic stature, and towering far above the pigmy of geniuses of Europe. In the opinion of certain enlightened editors, our men are wiser than Solomon, and our women more beautiful than Venus.

It in the house of Senate, a speech unusually popular and impressive, is delivered, we find in the next paper, a high flown panegyric, in terms similar to these: "Yesterday Mr. A. in the debate that took place in the house, delivered a speech, which has surpassed the most sanguine expectations of his warmest admirers. It united the torrent of Demosthenes with the splendid conflagration of Tully, and in short, is above all eulogy. We hope shortly to be able to gratify the public with this unrivalled specimen of reason and eloquence."

Should a series of periodical papers be collected and published in a volume, we are immediately informed, "The volume now for sale has the latest claims to the palm of immortality; it comprises the gentlest humour and easy elegance of Addison, the rich colouring of Hawkenworth, and the majestic energy of Johnson. We may now boast of a work that will establish the fame of American literature on an immovable basis and challenge the proudest productions of Europe."

Should a poem appear, however vicious in design, and defective in execution, the intrepid editors heroically assert—"The world must now confess that the muses have at length taken up their abode in Columbia. This poem vies with the happiest efforts of the European muse, in design and execution, and greatly excels all the poems of the whole world in magnificence and originality of expression. The author without flattery, may be styled the rich muse."

Should, indeed, are our editors of their encomiums, that the death or marriage of the obscurest persons in the community, seldom happens, without extravagant praises; as for instance —"Last Thursday was united in the bonds of conjugial bliss, Mr. C. Scavenger, to the lovely and accomplished Miss D." Then follows a serap of poetry, which it is to prove either rhyme or sense, the reader finds himself greatly disappointed.

"Died last last Wednesday, after a short illness Demot Tipperary, lemon filler. The public have sustained an irreparable loss in this worthy Hibernian, as his lemons far exceeded all others in thinness of skin and delicacy of flavor. The selectmen and other connoisseurs in punch, uniformly declared, that none speared with so much ease or tasted so well; and the first ladies of our metropolis have been known to refuse lemonade when not made with the lemons of Mr. Tipperary. We hope that all those who have been refreshed by his fruit, will not fail to attend his funeral, which will proceed from," &c. &c.

This custom of praising every one in the same strain of extravagant encomium, would be equally silly and harmless, did it not swell the vanity of the ignorant, and expose us to the ridicule of strangers. I was once informed by a British officer, who was taken prisoner with Burgoyne, that he was thus accosted by an honest Yankee, who was his sentinel: "Well, I guess you are very glad you are taken, eh! You never tasted so well before. Good salt pork and beef every day and a power of sauce. Why, they tell me, that in Britain, the king and nobles eat up all the the meat, and the rest of the folks live upon porridge and potatoes." The officer was amused by the simplicity of the honest fellow, and thinking it no easy matter to undeceive him, rather confirmed him in his error, leaving him highly elated with the imagined superiority of his country.

The vanity among the less informed part of our citizens, might lead us at times into a war, did not their love of money dread the expenses that would attend it. Thus we are guarded against the consequences of one weakness, by the counteracting effects of another. Vanity is the most deplorable of infirmities, and puffing generally injures those whom it intends to serve. When we find any one praised beyond his desert, our self-love takes the alarm, and leads us to inquire into his claims of superiority.
On discovering that either as a speaker or artist he is but a moral piece of mediocrity, our indignation is kindled against his insidious en-comiast, and we feel inclined to detract even from the real merit he may possess.

An honest, but ill-informed citizen may think the Old South larger than St. Paul's and the Hall superior to the Thuilleries. But men of sense should be above such prejudices, which are a perpetual bar to improvement, and expose us to the derision of foreigners. We are highly gifted as a nation, and inferior to none in proportion to our opportunities; and whilst all the world allow us to be six feet high, let us not quarrel with them, should they refuse to acknowledge us to be seven.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, Nov. 16, 1804.

The engrossed bill making farther appropriation for carrying into effect the treaty of amity commerce and navigation between the United States and Great Britain was read a third time and passed.

Mr. R. Griswold moved for the appointment of a committee to enquire what further provision ought to be made by law for the encouragement of the fisheries of the United States; the motion was carried; and the report on this subject made at the last session was referred to the same.

Mr. Jackson moved for the appointment of a committee to consider of the making provision for the application of the money heretofore appropriated for laying out and making certain public roads. A committee of five was appointed.

Mr. Kennedy presented a petition from a number of the inhabitants of Roanoke, &c. in North Carolina, praying a port of entry may be established at the town of Plymouth, referred to the committee already appointed on that subject.

Mr. Findley from the committee of Elections reported that the members who had been returned in the place of those who had resigned or deceased were entitled to take their seats.

Mr. Bryan reported from the committee on the official letter of Mr. Thomas Claxton, door keeper of the House of Representatives, respecting the admission of chaplains to preach in the chamber of Congress; that to the case stated by him, he had acted with propriety, and they recommend a resolution to the following effect.
That no person shall be authorised to preach in this chamber unless by consent of the Speaker or being introduced by one of the chaplains.

Alexandria Bank Shares

FOR SALE—apply to

James Patton.

Washington Tontine.

GEORGE TOWN, 6th October, 1804.

A NUMBER OF PROPRIETORS in the city of Washington, with views to convert their property into immediate money, have formed the following PLAN of a TONTINE; and have appointed the subscriber their agent for carrying the same into execution.

A list of the lots embarked in this enterprise precedes the plan of the institution. Plots of the city, on which these lots will be designated, will be lodged at the several taverns in Washington and George Town, for public inspection; and books will be opened in the city for receiving subscriptions of shares, on the first day of December, ensuing. Should books be opened elsewhere, due notice will be given thereof. Payment must be made for the shares at the time of subscribing, but if contrary to reasonable expectation, a sufficient number of shares should not be subscribed for the execution of the scheme, the money shall be faithfully returned to the subscribers, and without any unnecessary delay.

The constitution of the Tontine is too plain to need explanatory remarks. The basis of the institution being a rising property, rated on a very low scale, the advantages must be greater than could result from a mere mortgaged institution. It seems indeed more than probable, that each stockholder who survives the dissolution of the company, will find the value of his stock augmented twenty fold, or more. If any think that this favors of extravagance, let them advert to the increased value of unimproved property in any of our large towns during the last 20 years. Let them compare with the prices of the Tontine lots, those of the most indifferent property in any of those towns now. It will not be contended that any town in the United States had, 20 years ago, air prospects of rapid increase, than Washington has at this day. The fact will not be disputed, that the Tontine lots are generally amongst the most valuable in Washington.

The seat of government for such a country as the United States, cannot long remain an inconspicuous city. But Washington has an advantage more important than even this. It is the nearest sea port to that country which may be justly denominated the granary of America.

A plan of this kind formed 20 years ago on the basis of unimproved property in Baltimore or even in George Town, would have yielded to the surviving adventurers of this day, a profit of forty if not an hundred fold.

In May, 1800, Washington contained 3,200 inhabitants—in May, 1803, 4,350. The number now exceeds 5,000. In the same ratio of progressive increase, the population in 1807, will be 6,500; in 1810, 8,800; in 1813, 11,800; in 1816, 15,800; in 1819, 21,000; in 1822, 28,000; and in 1825, 33,000. Men of sense, who examine the situation of the Tontine lots, will perceive that the whole of them must be in demand for improvement before the population rises to 20,000. From the time, happen when it will, that our commerce shall principally depend upon our own productions, and our own consumption, the increase of the city will be infinitely more rapid. The resources of the country attached to it by nature, are now equal to the maintenance of 60,000 souls in the city. These resources, diverted at this time into many different channels, will be confined almost exclusively to Washington, when Europe shall be at peace, and each maritime nation can carry for itself.

The usual mode of selling lots in our large towns is by the front foot; in Washington the mode is by the square foot. At the highest price in this plan, a lot of 25 feet by 120 will be 240 dollars; the lowest price 60 dollars; in squares where there are alleys, a trifle more.

The whole property leased out at 30. per front foot, would pay more than 6 per cent. interest on the capital.

BEN: STODDERT.

The following lots in the city of Washington are those engaged in the Washington Tontine.
